SEMESTER 2 AND THE ROAD AHEAD

As the semester comes to an end the big story continues to be the virus and its influence on us all. Today the surge appears crested but the effects persist. As attendance goes down the stress continues up.

Fortunately we are about to get a fresh start with the school year's flip side. A new mix of classes combined with more daylight, warming temperatures and the coming Spring can raise anyone's spirit.

According to Dylan these are things students around the school are looking forward to.

Chris - Seeing Aria everyday

Bella - Hoping ceramics will be open

Tim - Interested in their new classes

Jack - Same as Timothy, as well as hanging with friends

Mason - Looking forward to graduating

Mark - Looking for snow and maybe some camping

Aidan - Hanging with their friends

Shauna - Being closer to the end of the year

Greg - Looking forward to teaching a new class

Anonymous - Getting good grades

Anonymous - Adding a new PE class

Chris L - Looking forward to seeing my favorite teachers, and getting stuff done

New Classes Second Semester

Feedback from Career Center Corner

West Sound Tech has put a hold on all tours for the time being due to high covid numbers. So instead of a field trip next month, we are changing it to a presentation by Nora Zollweg, here on February 17 at 10:30 am. The presentation is for juniors and sophomores who are considering the programs available at WST.

NCAD, the Northwest College of Art and Design, sent former student and practicing artist Hyuk Chang to explain the unique role of a college where everyone who works there is also an Artist. He showed student work and major trends while sharing examples of student work in multiple art media. Students stayed afterward for critiques and suggestions on their specific portfolio work.

This is the DigiPen Campus in Redmond where you can visit on weekends if you contact them.

DIGIPEN COMMENTS

JAKE ~ It was funny, inspiring, cool It also made me wanna go.

KATIE ~ The presentation was good. It got me curious and wondering about the college/university as well as some projects they have done....so, overall, it was entertaining and engaging.

BLAINE ~ The presentation was nice because he showed us a few videos to show what life was like on campus.

The DigiPen presenter was Alec Leibsohn who showed what it would be like to attend DigiPen. One of his stats was DigiPen has the highest return on investment of any college in the state of Washington

NCAD COMMENTS

TIMOTHY ~ I thought it was a star presentation, and it was well done. Even though I'm not going to be an artist it was still cool.

AUSTIN ~ Something I enjoyed about the art college presentation was that the presenter covered the financial assistance benefits and the layout of the school.

This is inside the Northwest College of Art and Design Campus in Tacoma where you can also visit on weekends if you contact them.

The Battlefield

story by Clowey

The battlefield I speak of is not equipped with guns, coal, and steel, not filled with men and women who conjure up the need for blood on their hands. I don't speak of loud raging hatred between the two sides which neither surrender the moral to the good or evil.

The battlefield I speak of is a battle some may fight everyday, A battle we fight on both sides. A battle we never win, either way, just like me-- a part of us loses, no side is good or evil- they have the same values just different ways of viewing them. but lost in the oblivion of each side's own belief. The battlefield I speak of is a battle I have now fallen from, a battle I ask the unbearable question, " what if I were to die"?

Should you hear my body and soul, breaking, crying, dying for now I have fallen, would you hear my soul cry, would you hear my body crash down within my bones. Watch me as I fall through your fingers even though there are no cracks to slip from, would you hear my cries across the battlefield where I have fallen deep within. The battle has ended, both have fallen. Hear my tears fall and my body crack as the blood stains my skin as scars are left dragged across my body.

The battlefield that once I could not win is now a battle that I no longer have the desire to fight for. Now the battlefield has gone quiet, thoughts have gone lost, tears have been shed. Now I'm lost between the lines of my own story that once spilt blood now stains my skin with scars that lay across my body as words and unwanted questions are asked as I write the answers deep within my past.

The battlefield has grown cold, the battle has died within my hands that I carry inside this damaged broken body, tears and blood slips of the sins from the past now slips and slide through your broken fingers. As the past now lies within the grounds of a new battlefield, a new journey has grown to a new road that lays with unbelievable told stories but for most a new one.

Although the past may still stain me I will walk through this new journey to the war ahead and I will wear my battle scars as armor and tell the story of the battle within and on me with pride to the new journey and the war ahead that comes with a new story of a journey I'm needing to see and hear and walk through with open eyes no matter the blood or cries or sins that may plenish me but as I walk I will forgive but never shall I forget for the stories, the sin, the cry with tears and blood within scars I shall never forget for the story and answers are within me.

I ask you to open your mind to the battlefield I speak of and then will you understand the war I have to fight. To win the war you must fall within the battle, not every war is fought on a battlefield but within the battle of your own mind. I welcome you to the battlefield to your own mind were once you learn to fall you will learn that you can rise only to fight again, as you fight you learn, you grow. This is the battle field I speak of.

What games are popular at Henderson?

story by Dylan

Today, almost everyone has at least heard of video games. They're really good time wasters, story tellers, and all around competitions.

But what is your absolute favorite game? Here are some answers from fellow students and staff.

- Francesco- Lunar: Silver Star
- Chris- Forza Horizon 5
- Jessica- Halo
- T.j. - Dying Light
- Mark - Original Mario Bros.
- Robin- Titanfall 2
- Aiden - Minecraft/GTA
- Max- Skyrim Elder Scrolls
- Cody- Call of Duty/ Super Smash Bros.
- Dylan- Smash/ Terraria

INTERACT to the Rescue

Blood supply in the area has dropped to critical levels. Interact is planning a potential drive in March. Our goal is to help get the "critical" blood level supply up in Washington.

By state law you have to be 16 or 17 with parent consent or 18 to donate. Hopefully we can get this done next month.

3D PRINTED FLOOR PLANS

These 3D printed models mostly represent sections of a house. They are complete with stairs, kitchens, doorways, and some even have some special decorations. Most are made by other students in John's class and some are made by John himself. It's made with an ONYX SERIES Markforged printer.

story by Dylan

Bobby is showing the floor plan model he printed out. Printing slices the model into multiple layers. The nylon filament reinforced with carbon then builds the house layer by layer by the thickness of a thread. The entire print process usually takes about eight hours.

WALKABOUT

We Hope you are enjoying the sixth edition of Henderson GRAND PRESS, Volume 1. Next semester we start Volume 2.

Second semester will bring a new class and the opportunity for more people to contribute. Even if you aren't in Yearbook/Newspaper we will continue Henderson Grand Press and remain eager to publish out of class submissions.

We welcome original work from guest writers, artists, cartoonists, talent from all reaches of the Academies. My goal as advisor is to recognize and celebrate individuals for the unique work they are doing on this campus. If you have a story or an interest that could make it to our pages we would love your participation.

We ask that any contributions go through our editorial board. We like to use first names only or initials in the actual publication but will need the full names of anyone written about or photographed. We have a practice of using first names to protect identity, especially on anything posted on line.

Co-Editors include Abi, Dylan and Shawn

Advisor is John in Room 116
